

MODERN HOTEL - FOR G. W. U. SITE

S. W. Woodward Said to Plan Big Structure.

RETURNS HOME MONDAY

University Moving to New Home in I Street.

Wreckers Are Ready to Attack Old Red Building at Fifteenth and H Streets Within Week, by Which Time College Furniture Will Have Been Transferred to New Headquarters—Location of Departments.

George Washington University began moving yesterday to the new headquarters in I street, and the old home at Fifteenth and H streets northwest will be wrecked to make way for a modern hotel, it is reported.

The hotel will be erected by S. W.
Woodward at a cost of nearly $1,000,000.
It is said, and the work will be started immediately. Mr. Woodward purchased the building about two months ago from the George Washington University for $500,000, and offered it to the college on a rental basis of $7,500 a year.

The trustees of the university found it impossible to clear up their varied debts and continue at this rental, so they decided to find other quarters.

Hotel First Thought Of.

It is said to have been Mr. Woodward's original intention to erect in the place of the old red structure an elegant hotel, and when the building was not rented for the continuation of the university, he is said to have ordered the architects to begin drafting plans and specifications forthwith. He is on a vacation at his summer home, Jamestown, R. I., and there was no one in the city last night to verify the report that a new hotel is to be built at Fifteenth and H.

The Thompson-Starrett Company, a contracting firm of New York, will wreck the old building, but the firm planning the new building is not known in Washington. It is understood that bids will be advertised for this fall.

Room for New Hotel.

With all of her handsome hotels and apartment houses, Mr. Woodward believes Washington has room for more.
He is one who believes in making this the greatest convention city, and the rumor that he is going to build a big hotel gives reason for the belief that he expects to see the day come when all the world will bow to Washington.

The George Washington University headquarters will be at 252 to 262 I street northwest. The office of the treasurer, the college of engineering, fine arts, architecture, and teachers' college will be in this row. The law department will be on the second floor of the Masonic Temple, at the corner of Thirtieth street and New York avenue. The medical school will remain in its old quarters, in H street.

New Hopes for G. W. U.

Dr. H. L. Hopkins, dean of the department of engineering, said yesterday he believed the university excellently accommodated in its new quarters. The dean was very hopeful about the future of the university. He said:

"I believe the financial condition of the university will begin to improve at once.
In our new quarters we will not have the large expense we had in the old place.
"I understand a hotel will be erected on the site of the old building. I hear the main building will be torn down at once."

Mr. Woodward will return to Washington Monday and remain for a few days. It is thought he is coming home to make final arrangements for wrecking the old George Washington University building.

According to estimates made yesterday it will take two months to wreck the old building and move the debris. All the furniture of the university will be moved out in the course of another week. As soon as the building is cleared of the university effects, the wrecking will start.

Loeffler's Park. The committee is composed of W. Scott West, G. H. Seabour, L. C. M. Siebel, and G. Albert Freer.

COMPLAIN OF NOISE.

Southwest Citizens Disturbed by the Moonlight Excursionists.

Southwest Washington citizens are indignant over the disturbance created every Saturday night by the moonlight excursionists, and intend to take the matter before the Commissioners, it is said.

They complain that it is impossible to sleep on Saturday night and Sunday morning. While a man from Virginia was talking with a friend at the harbor police office last night, a steamboat let loose a loud blast. The stranger asked what it meant, and was informed that it was stirring things up for the night's excursion.

"You see," said the man, who had lost much sleep, "they start blowing that whistle Friday night and keep it up until the steamer starts down the river early Sunday morning."

When the excursionists return the police know what to expect, and as soon as the boat is sighted off Buzzards Point the patrol wagon is sent for.

BUND WELCOMERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Austrian Singers to Get Reception To-morrow.

George Spier, chairman of the committee of arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting singers from the city of Vienna to-morrow, has announced his committee on welfare, which will have charge of the reception of the guests and will make the way smooth for their enjoyment on the occasion of the reception at the Library of Congress and the banquet at the Willard.

This committee will be distinguished by a gold and black badge, worn over the colors of the University of Vienna.
It is composed of Paul Bausch, Carl Droop, L. H. Foster, Anton Kaspar, A.
Fred Joss, Richard Brauer, Martin Wiesand, John Schwartz, John Hansen, Frank Enders, O. G. Sonneck, William Muehlenstein, and Henry Xander.

The visiting body of singers is affiliated with the University of Vienna, and its official title is the Wiener Akademischen Gesangverein. It is made up of the young men of the university, and all are trained singers.

The party will be met at Union Station by a large body of German-Americans of the Capital in automobiles, and the visitors will be taken past the Capitol and Library of Congress to the New Willard, which will be their stopping place while in the city. Luncheon will be served at the hotel, and this will be followed by a reception at the Library of Congress, where as many prominent residents of Washington as may desire will be presented to the singers.

A big golden key, specially prepared for the occasion, will be presented to the president of the Gesangverein, emblematic of the key to the city, to be preserved as a memento of the visit.

At the banquet Commissioner Rudolph will present to the visitors a large silver cup. Chairman Spier, of the committee, will make an address of welcome to the singers, which will be responded to by a member of the party selected by the visitors. Music for the banquet will be furnished jointly by the visitors and the singing societies of the Capital. All the singing societies of the Capital will be represented at the banquet.

ELECTROLIERS ATTRACT STROLLING HUNDREDS

Sixteenth street's 250 electroliers won public attention last night, when F street and Pennsylvania avenue strollers wandered over there to see how the lights looked. The proposition to name this principal thoroughfare of Washington the Avenue of the Presidents is yet to be decided by Congress.

The fact that it so nearly divides the northwest section, including populous Georgetown, from the other parts of Washington makes it possible for Sixteenth street to become the Fifth avenue of Washington. This was the opinion of some of the hundreds who visited the boulevard last night.

From the top of the hill in Mount Pleasant one can look straight down the wide street and get an unobstructed view of the White House at its extreme end, with the Monument and the Potomac River as its background. The new-style lights, which are on no other street, give it additional prominence, which, with the numerous fashionable residences under course of construction, bid fair to make Sixteenth street one day Washington's most popular and fashionable highway.

Sunday night promenading along Sixteenth street will be made possible and popular by the new lights, and already jealous residents of neighboring streets are demanding that they be shown the same favor.

Anxious citizens are flooding the office of the Commissioners with letters, asking when such lights will be placed on such and such a street, but until Congress allows a separate appropriation Sixteenth street will still hold the proud distinction of being Washington's only Fifth avenue.

GOING BACK TO DIXIE.

Paraphraser Nevin Will Return to Georgia Journalism.

James B. Nevin, whose paragraphs and editorial work have been a feature of The Washington Herald from its first issue, has resigned this position, and will return shortly to Rome, Ga., his former home, to take editorial charge of the Rome Tribune, with which he was identified before coming to Washington.

A little dinner was given him at the Press Club last evening by his colleagues of this paper, when, in an informal manner, he received personal testimony of the esteem and affection felt for him in his steady and long service of the paper, and his deep regret at the severance of a happy newspaper relationship.

As an incident of the evening, he was the recipient of a watch, fittingly engraved, as a token of The Washington Herald's appreciation of his talents and loyal service.

A further tribute was paid to him in leave-taking rhyme, as follows:
When you go to calling a fellow Jim, Just Jim-in as ordinary of hand war, Whenever you pass him the time of day, There's apt to be something good in him.
And that is the way we've come to think (We who have gathered to eat and drink) Of Jimmy Nevin, who's going away.

And to whom from the depths of our hearts we say:
"Well, good-by, Jim; take care of yourself."
Never was nothing stuck up or proud About our Jim;
Yet we were all wrapped up in him.
There was little of sting, but a lot of laughs In his steady run string of paragraphs.
Biting humor, but all of it clean,
That he heeded on his old machine.
We'll miss 'em, but, quitting, he'll hear us say:
"Well, good-by, Jim; take care of yourself."

The office will be a different place without him.
I'll hurt to miss his genial face.
And say to him, as he goes, "Good-by."
He turns his face to the Southern Cross, And Georgia's gain is our personal loss.
We're sorry for us, but we're glad for Rome;
And we're glad for Jimmy—he's going home.
To welcome him, but, at work or play, Remember, it's from our hearts we say:
"Well, good-by, Jim; take care of yourself."
